It's Fair Time!

Friday horse show kicks off 2013 event

It's back already!

The 2013 version of the Clinton County Fair, which will run for eight days of events over a nine-day period, will officially kick off this Friday night, June 14 with a horse show at 6 p.m.

The show will feature about 20 categories of competition for all comers, with gate admission being $5 each.

Then on Saturday, June 15, day and night events will be held leading into the "main" full week of fair activities at the fairgrounds that begin on Monday.

The annual baby show will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, with gate admission being $2. Then that evening, the Little Miss and Mister and Miss Pre-Teen pageants will be held at 6 and 7 p.m., respectively, with admission that night being $3 per person.

Clinton County Fair Board President Jackie Flowers highlighted some main events of this year's fair, including some brand new events and programs that will be taking place.

One such brand new event, catered to children, will be the nightly shows featuring former Clown of the Year, Lovey and entitled "Lovey's Kid Show," which will be held every night of the fair at 6 and 8 p.m., including this Friday and Saturday.

Lovey, a part of NoJoe's Circus, will have her own area set up behind the yellow building on the fairgrounds to entertain kids and the young-at-heart alike. She will be doing such things as magic tricks, hand painting, making animals from balloons and while not putting on her own show, will be milling around the fairgrounds, entertaining the

Wellness Center issues explained to city officials

Tyler Shearer checked the pool's alkalinity Monday to make sure everything was on spec. The pool had recently been drained and closed due to heating issues. Last week, the fire department filled the 82,650 gallon pool in preparation of reopening it soon. Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center Director Bobby Grant said if everything goes as planned, the pool will reopen this coming Monday.

The Twin Lakes Wellness Center remains center stage in the news these days as the facility's Board of Directors continue to work to find ways to dig itself out of financial debt and at the same time increase membership, thus increasing revenues to operate the fitness center.

The Wellness Center again was discussed at length last week by a few of its board members and a handful of supporters--this time at a meeting with the Albany City Council. The issue was discussed at the council's regular monthly June session.

Pastor Bobby Grant began the dialogue by thanking Mayor Nicky Smith and the city council for their past support, saying they had stuck with them over almost 10 years. He continued by saying he would like to see the city get one-half ownership of the property back.

Wellness Center board member Tim Armstrong then read an impassioned email from a patron of the facility, who explained how much it had helped her in many ways.

Mayor Smith noted that when the county do-

Ever optimistic, Director Grant hopes changes will keep Center afloat

In recent weeks, the Albany/Clinton County Family Wellness Center has undergone hard times. With the closing of the pool, Director Bobby Grant said the center has lost several members, but now, things are looking up for the center and the pool will open soon.

"I want to thank the mayor, city council, fiscal court, the judge and the fire department, for filling the pool for us," Grant said. "If all goes well, it will be open Monday. All the volunteers who have helped, along with Matt Smith, who helped pressure wash and clean the pool, through this difficult time."

During the past several months, the Wellness Center has been joined with a new manager and according to Grant, she has a lot of energy and is proving to be an asset to the center and everything it stands for.

"Our business manager, Charlotte Dick, has helped us out. She has been great," Grant said.

City adopts $4.4 million budget

Albany City Council approved the next fiscal year budget, heard a presentation from the Wellness Center board and took up other issues at its regular monthly meeting last Tuesday evening, June 4 with all members present. The council first held a 45-minute discussion on the Wellness Center and a separate article on that issue can be found elsewhere this week.

Following talks with the Twin Lakes Wellness Center board members, director and some supporters, the council began routine items of business on its agenda, first holding second reading on a budget amendment for the current 2012-13 year, that ends June 30, including $428,233.50 for various water related projects.

The council, without discussion, then approved the upcoming 2013-14 fiscal year budget, which they had reviewed over the past month since its first reading in May. A motion to approve the budget, which begins July 1, was made by Councilman Frankie Stockton and passed by unanimous vote.

The total budget for the coming year is $4,432,331 and includes a little over $3 million in the water utilities ($2.7 million) and waste water utilities ($340,437), with some $959,400 in the general fund. (A budget summary of totals will be published in the legal pages of the Clinton County News.)

Mayor Nicky Smith then gave a brief project status, noting the Hwy. 127 utility relocation section two/Albany Bypass was complete and in service. The final section to the Tennessee line is expected to be complete in the next few days. Also, the new variable speed motor drive control drivers have been installed on the raw water pumps. This will allow the motors on the raw water pumps to turn slower and should reduce the electricity used.

The council then voted to declare four vehicles as surplus property and either sell them via sealed bid or public auction. Those include a GMC 2500; Dodge 1500; Ford Ranger; and 1998 Jeep.

Councilman James "Smitty" Smith then noted

Clinton one of seven chosen for new program

Clinton County Schools Assistant Superintendent Paula Little, left, told the members of the Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition last week the news that Clinton County had been one of only seven communities chosen by the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky as a community partner.

Local coalition goal will be to reduce chronic disease risk for 'next generation'

The health of our children is everyone's concerns, but in Kentucky, where alarming numbers of school age children are at high risk for chronic disease, the level of concern has reached extreme highs.

A group of concerned adults that represent a broad mix from the Albany and Clinton County Community, are hoping to be able to come up with solutions to the problem, and last week they learned that their initial efforts had been met with approval on the financial level.

Several members of the Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition met briefly at the Clinton County School Board conference room to hear Clinton County Assistant Superintendent Paula Little make the announcement that Albany and Clinton County and the Clinton County Schools had been selected for a first round grant that will enable the group to take the program to the next tier.

The Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky has chosen Clinton County Schools as one of its seven (7) community partners for the new Investing in Kentucky's Future (IKF) initiative.

Rural and urban grantees are geographically representative of the entire Commonwealth.

Improper use putting recycling bin availability in jeopardy again

The two recycle bins located at the City of Albany's maintenance facility in east Albany and used by city and county residents as a way to recycle materials, is again in danger of being lost, according to Albany Mayor Nicky Smith.

The recycling bins, which were secured through work of a school club a few years ago and originally placed in the Westview Shopping Center lot, have almost consistently been used for purposes not intended for recycling, but has been the area where trash, furniture and even household garbage has been placed.

The recycle bins, donated by the Somerset Recycling Center, are only for items specific to recycling, including cardboard, plastics, and papers (newspapers, magazines).

Items that are specifically not legally allowed are things such as household trash, garbage, furniture and so forth.

Mayor Smith said he thought there may have

The defendant pled guilty to the offenses of DUI and operating a motor vehicle while license is revoked or suspended for DUI, second offense, with a five-year sentence imposed. Pursuant to the agreement, the defendant will serve 58 days in jail, 32 days home incarceration with the balance probated for five years with supervision. Charges of failure to maintain insurance and failure to transfer vehicle were dismissed.

* During arraignment, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Stephen M. Bell, charged with criminal mischief, theft by unlawful taking and persistent felony offender, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty with a trial date of August 20 being scheduled with a pretrial conference set for August 5.

* During motion hour, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Ricky Dewayne Jones, charged with theft by unlawful taking, burglary second degree and persistent felony offender second degree, the court determined the defendant had violated the terms and conditions of his probation and revoked same and sentenced the defendant to serve the balance of a seven and-a-half year sentence with credit for time served as to be determined by the Kentucky Department of Corrections.

* During motion hour, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Brian A. Speck, charged with promoting contraband and persistent felony offender second degree, the court determined the defendant had violated the terms and conditions of his probation and revoked same and sentenced the defendant to serve the balance of a five-year sentence and given credit for time served as to be determined by the Kentucky Department of Corrections.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Christopher Tweedy.

The Commonwealth recommended dismissing the charges of disorderly conduct second degree and resisting arrest. Upon a plea of guilty to assault third degree, the defendant would receive a three-year sentence, pretrial diverted for three years with supervision if the defendant remains in Kentucky and unsupervised if he resides out-of-state.

* During arraignment, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jonathon Wray, charged with theft by deception under $10,000, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty with a trial date of September 17 being scheduled and a pretrial conference set for September 3.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Teresa L. Waid, charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, possession of a meth precursor, drug paraphernalia, marijuana and a controlled substance first degree, first offense, the trial date originally scheduled for June 25 was continued until August 7 with a pretrial conference set for July 15.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. William Matthew Reynolds, charged with complicity to burglary second degree, the trial date originally scheduled for June 13 was continued to July 29 with another pretrial conference set for July 1.

* During arraignment in the case of Commonwealth vs. Christopher Posey, charged with theft by unlawful taking, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty with a trial date of September 17 being scheduled with a pretrial conference set for September 3.

* During arraignment in the case of Commonwealth vs. Timmy D. Neal, charged with criminal mischief (two counts) burglary third degree and criminal trespass third degree, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty with a trial date of August 20 being scheduled and a pretrial conference set for August 5.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Richard Lee Guthrie, charged with manufacturing methamphetamine first offense, possession of drug paraphernalia, a controlled substance, a meth precursor and persistent felony offender, the court sustained a motion to consolidate cases and the trial date originally scheduled for June 25 was continued to August 7 with a pretrial conference set for July 15.

* During arraignment, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Gabrielle Nicole Guthrie, charged with fleeing or evading police, reckless driving, expired registration plates, failure to maintain insurance, criminal mischief third degree, complicity to burglary second degree and possession of a meth precursor, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty. A trial date of July 29 was scheduled with a pretrial conference on July 1.

* During arraignment, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Garrett Gene Gabbard, charged with criminal mischief third degree, burglary second degree and criminal trespass second degree, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty. A trial date of August 15 was scheduled with a pretrial conference on July 15.

* During a pretrial conference, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Joshua E. Shaw, charged with possession of a controlled substance (meth), possession of a meth precursor first offense, possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia and manufacturing methamphetamine, first offense, the original trial date of June 25 was continued to August 7 with a pretrial conference scheduled for July 15.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Danni Lynn Burgin, charged with possession of a meth precursor first offense, possession of marijuana, a controlled substance first degree, drug paraphernalia and manufacturing methamphetamine, the original trial date of June 25 was continued to August 7 with a pretrial conference scheduled for July 15.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Tonya J. Conaster, charged with complicity to burglary second degree, manufacturing meth and persistent felony offender second degree, the trial date originally scheduled for June 13 was continued to July 29 with a pretrial conference scheduled for July 1.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Bobbi Carol Gibson, charged with theft of identity of another without consent, the defendant did not appear, a warrant of arrest was issued and the defendant will be placed in NCIC.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Amber York, charged with tampering with physical evidence, the court noted the action remains set for trial on June 26.

Several other cases were also on last week's busy docket, with pretrial conferences being scheduled in some cases, some motions were sustained to consolidate cases, at least one defendant was not transported to court and other cases were continued for various reasons.

Fair

As far as the 4-H programs go, the annual pet show this year will feature its initial run at having an "obstacle course" for your pets to compete in--which should be entertaining at best.

Although not officially a competition this year, but something as a promotion to possibly get started in the future, there will be a "miniature" farm scene, complete with farm, animals, ponds, houses, etc. set up to demonstrate what youngsters may try and create themselves to showcase at next year's fair. Flowers called this a "good project" for kids to do in the winter time to present at the fair and requires a lot of work to put together.

Other new programs will include KOI Drag racing, dirt drag type races for cars, trucks, ATV's, and motorcycles with a 300-foot stretch with lights. Flowers says he hopes this event, which will take place at 7 p.m. Thursday, will see a big turnout, not only of spectators but competitors.

Another new event that is becoming more and more popular in the area will be an archery competition on the show track, which will be replacing the mule pulls this year. That competition is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday.

There will be few, if any changes, to the exhibit hall entries, showing and pick-ups, but the exhibits will be in the main, air-conditioned, exhibit hall this year, Flowers said.

As a way to recognize veterans and senior citizens, on Family Night Tuesday, all veterans and persons 62 and over will be admitted free. Flowers said, as always, they were planning on a lot of participation in the family night events.

This year's carnival, Carnival Tyme out of Tennessee, will not be set up until the main fair week and as of now, pending required inspections prior to setting up in a location, they could be in operation as early as Monday night, and if not, by Tuesday night, Flowers said.

The armband price--ride all rides all night for one price--will also increase this year, despite objections by the fair board, from $15 to $20.

There will also be a couple of nights this year when gate admission prices will increase, derby night on Wednesday and truck pull night on Saturday, when the cost will be $8 per person.

Flowers noted the need for the increase was due to the high payout the fair has to award and the rising costs of putting on the programs. For example, four classes for the truck pull, in pay-outs, is $7,000, plus $1,800 for the sled and paying two tech people. "It's hard to cover $10,000 in cost with only 2,000 people paying at the gate," he said.

Flowers also noted about the demolition derby on Wednesday that there would be more emphasis this year on small cars.

Also of interest to clubs and non-profit organizations is the fairgrounds has 10 spaces available behind the main grandstands for vendors to set up and either hand out promotion material, sell tickets as a fundraiser, etc. As of last week, there were about four spaces left for any club or organization interested in a space, which rents at only $50 for the week.

The annual tractor give-away will again be on a Friday night, June 21 in the main exhibit building and several of the 350 total $100 tickets are still available. The grand prize is the Case 55 tractor, or an optional $10,000 cash, but there are also several other prizes on the first, next-to-the-last and each 25th ticket drawn, including cash prizes ranging from $100 to $1,000.

The tractor can be seen in the parking lot at Albany Building Center on Washington Street and tickets are available from any park board member.

Flowers said that tractor tickets sales are what keeps the fair going, with the funds raised from the sale of the tickets used for fairground improvements, maintenance and so forth from year-to-year.

He noted the cost of keeping the fair up and running and the fairgrounds itself in good condition is a costly venture. Although the board applies occasionally for any grant money that may be available, those type funds are few and far between.

The cost of maintaining the fairgrounds and presenting the week-long event each year is high, the fair board president added. When you count utilities, insurance, pay-outs for events and programs presented to the public each year and building maintenance, the expenses are high, he said.

Everyone is invited to attend and/or participate in this year's 2013 Clinton County Fair, which will hopefully be bigger and better.

This week, the Clinton County News has included the annual fair preview section, which highlights all the events, schedules, times, rules and regulations.

See you at the 2013 Clinton County Fair!

"Our future looks bright for us. We are beginning to pick up new members and starting new programs. It's going to benefit a lot of people."

During a fiscal court meeting held last month, more than 100 people showed up to support the Wellness Center and it was explained how the facility became and the public and magistrates were educated as to how some monies had to be spent on certain things and could not be used for paying bills.

At one point, County Attorney Michael Rains was asked to read parts of the lease agreement, which began in 2009 and runs for 50 years. That agreement, in part, says the lease (Wellness Center) is to pay the county $100 per month and also pay all charges for water, electricity, gas, telephone or other utility. Also, taxes, and water and sewer service.

Magistrate Patty Guinn inferred that if the county had the money, they needed to help pay.

According to grant stipulations, the facility has to remain open as a fitness center and serve 53.3 percent of the low-to-moderate income citizens of the county until at least June of 2016 or both the city and council could be liable if the facility ceases to operate as such, and be made to pay back up to $500,000 each.

The city and county applied for the original funding, with the county being the lead entity.

Judge Huff also noted that the (fiscal) court nor city council was "in the Wellness Center business" and noted they were fortunate to have the leftover grant funds to make the needed conversions to save the facility money.

The judge then opened the floor for some public comments with a few people speaking on behalf of the Wellness Center, some of whom received loud rounds of applause.

One person said the main reason they were there was concern for the pool. Another said she used the Wellness Center for herself and her kids, noting that fitness was important and that obesity is a major health concern that costs everyone in the long run.

"If they could only go out there and see those kids in the pool, or see those young people using the weight room ... I understand people get upset when you talk about taxes and money."

With the pool set to open Monday the Wellness Center should acquire more members in the upcoming months.

Grant said the pool is very necessary for the county because it provides exercise for a lot of the senior citizens in the county.

"There are a lot of senior citizens who use the pool for therapy," Grant said. "When we decided to close it down, we froze all the accounts of the people who solely use the pool that way it wouldn't cost them any money while the pool was down. When we get it back up and running, we will reopen those accounts."

The pool is not just for members. Grant said "Anybody who wants to use the pool can come out and pay five dollars and use the facility for two, three, or four hours. They can stay out there all day if they like."

The Center is also about to undergo the installation of an entry system that would allow members the ability to access the facility on a 24 hour basis.

That proposed system would give members the option of using much of the equipment late at night or in the early morning hours if they choose.

Access to the swimming pool would not, however, be included in the 24 hour entry system, according to the current plan.

The new 24 hour system will cost around $4,700 and Grant said they are working to raise money to install it. The Wellness Center is selling tickets on a grill and other items, as well as seeking donations in order to cover the cost of the 24 hour system.

"We are always looking for new programs that will help physically and mentally," Grant said. When we go to this 24 hour service, there have been tons of people at Equity Group say they would join. They work eight hours at night and when they get done and they are wound up, they can work out. A lot of people don't like to go when there is a crowd there, so they can go at 10 o'clock at night. Everybody is not going to like the Wellness Center and everybody is not going to join and that's okay, but for those who do, they are taxpayers just like everybody else. That's why we live in a free nation. I don't have any problem with that. We would like for more people to join."

Grant said he wants the public and the members of the Wellness Center to bear with them during these difficult times.

"Things are looking up. We have a limited staff and there are some things we would have done differently and some things were unbeknownst to us in the beginning," Grant said. "You learn from your mistakes. We've rearranged some things and given responsibilities to other volunteers to help us maintain and keep our status quo going."

Grant said there have been several people who have stepped up and donated their time helping with the books and other things and he couldn't be happier with the way people in the county have donated their time to the Wellness Center.

"I'm so pleased with the people who have stepped forward," Grant said. "The thing we need now are members and people are joining. I think during the last two weeks, we've had 15 or so join and that was with the pool not open. I think things are going to get better and we are going to have a great year."

When dealing with the public, doing something that is popular to everybody is unheard of and Grant recognizes that.

"I didn't stay in the ministry for 40 years and not go through conflict" Grant said. "It's not all a bed of roses. It's getting there. We will survive ... we have survived. We have about 270 paying units. If we could double that we wouldn't have a care in the world."

If anybody would like to donate to help fund the 24 hour service, stop by the Wellness Center and make a donation.

"We want to be a positive member of the community and we want to enhance our community," Grant said. "

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK
Monticello

Monticello High School basketball standout Don Frye has been included in the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's Hall of Fame Class of 2014. This will mark the 27th class to be inducted and will bring the total number of individuals honored to 423.

The official announcement regarding the inductees for 2014 was made on June 2. Formal induction ceremonies will be April 27, 2014 at the Lexington Convention Center.

Frye was a member of the Class of 1960 at Monticello High School and was a member of the state runner-up team that season. Frye scored 1,751 points for the Trojans during his high school career and led them to three trips to the Sweet 16.

Frye received a basketball scholarship to the University of Colorado. He later transferred to Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina.

During an interview with The Outlook in 2010, Frye talked about his playing days at Monticello High School and that special state tournament in 1960.

With a third straight state tournament appearance, Frye said he "knew we were headed for something special. And we just about made it."

Frye got sick, as the Trojans arrived at the state tournament, and many feel that his performance was hampered because of illness. He down played it.

"I had a fever, but I felt good enough to play," he said. "It didn't knock me out of playing."

The Trojans met Louisville Flaget in the finals of the state tournament played before a large crowd in Freedom Hall in Louisville. Flaget defeated Monticello by a final of 65-56 to earn the state title. Frye led his team in scoring with 24 points.

"It was just two good teams going at it," Frye recalled. "We played pretty good. They just outplayed us."

He also shared memories of the team's return home to Monticello the following day, when a large crowd met them.

"That was one of the proudest moments I have ever experienced," said Frye. "We had no idea how many people were going to come out and meet us when we got home...There was a lot of people there."

Other inductees selected for the 2014 Hall of Fame class included: former UK football players Sonny Collins of Madisonville, Derek Homer of Ft. Knox, Fred Bishop of Pineville, and Russell Miracle of Bell County; former U of L quarterback Jeff Brohm; sports writer Mike Field of the Lexington Herald-Leader; swimmer Carolina Burckle of Sacred Heart; basketball player Ukari Figgs from Scott County; official Barbara Ann Isaac; and three-sport star Brook Marnitz of Paul Laurence Dunbar.

Have you already passed part of the GED® test or started studying for it?

It's always a good time to earn your GED® test credential, but if you've already started the process, you need to kick it into high gear and finish before December 18, 2013. Here are a couple of good reasons why:

- This is the last year for the current version of the GED® test.
- If you have already passed part of the GED® exam, your scores will expire at the end of 2013.

TIMES JOURNAL
Russell Springs

Four people have been arrested in connection with the armed robbery of Russell Springs businessman Theo Branscum last Thursday evening, May 30, in the rear parking lot of Branscum Storage on Lakeway Drive, according to Russell Springs Police Chief Joe Irvin.

After an extensive investigation, Russell Springs Police have charged William Patton, 43, Bobby Beard, 42, Eric Burton, 38, and Vincent Lynch, 29, all of Russell Springs, with first degree robbery.

All four individuals are accused of conspiring to rob Branscum of money just after Patton met and paid Branscum money he owed him two weeks ago last Thursday.

Patton was arrested and charged a short time after the robbery while Beard and Burton were arrested last Saturday night, according to police. Lynch was arrested around 1:30 a.m. on Monday, June 3. All were arrested by RSPD Officer Nathan Bradshaw and lodged in Russell County Detention Center.

Three individuals were arrested early Sunday morning, June 2, for allegedly making methamphetamine, according to Russell Springs Police Chief Joe Irvin.

Japeth Miller, 23, of Jamestown, Patricia Norris, 31, of Russell Springs, and Crystal Richmond, 37, of Jamestown are each charged with manufacturing methamphetamine.

All three were taken into custody at a home on C. Weston Rd. around 7:30 a.m. Sunday, June 2 by members of the Russell Springs Police Department and Russell County Sheriff's Department.

Miller was also charged with tampering with physical evidence and fleeing from police.

All were lodged in the Russell County Detention Center with RSPD Officer Nathan Bradshaw listed as the arresting officer.

Craig Pippen, Russell County High School girls' basketball coach, resigned two weeks ago from his position as head coach of the Lady Lakers.

Pippen was hired before the 2007-08 season to guide the Lady Laker program that had just gone 4-23 during the 2006-07 season. In his six years as head coach, Pippen compiled a 105-63 record, winning the 16th district championship four times and making five 4th region appearances at E.A. Diddle Arena in Bowling Green.

"Words cannot describe how I feel right now," Pippen said after announcing the news. "There is never a right time to resign, especially when you walk away from something you have done for 23 years, 16 of those as a head coach," Pippen, who had 225 wins as a head coach in those 16 years, said basketball has been a big part of his life and will continue to be, but just in a different context.

"I feel like it is time to shift my focus toward my family," he said. "I have spent the past 23 years coaching other folks' kids, now it's time to spend more time with and coach my own."

Pippen has been an assistant coach at Lexington Catholic under Danny Haney, Marion County under Tim Davis, Dunbar under Frank Watson and Henry Clay under Greg Holt. He was the boys' coach at Model from 1997 to 2002 and at Danville from 2002 to 2007 before taking over the girls' program at RCHS.

He said he had made a lifetime of memories associated to coaching basketball throughout his career.

"I have many on-court memories such as championships and heart-break losses but the ones I will relish the most are the off-court experiences," he said.

"I remember taking one of my Danville teams to Florida for a team camp and one of my players fell to his knees with tears running down his face from seeing the ocean for the first time. Now that memory is worth a thousand words."

The former Laker coach said the hardest part about stepping down was telling his seniors-to-be.

"That was the hardest part of my decision," he said.

"They are great young women who are class acts. There is no doubt in my mind that these four, Rachel "Smiley" McFall, Madison "Mad Dawg" Loy, Danielle "Ginger" Walters and Baylee "The Real Deal" Hadley will lead next year's group to a championship season. These girls are family to me."

Pippen said the Lady Laker basketball program will be in good hands with whoever they decide to bring in as the new head coach in the month's ahead.

"The youth league is in good shape, there are a lot of talented young players coming up from the middle school and the varsity will be guided by four excellent leaders," Pippen said.

"Anytime you step away you want to leave the program in great shape. I feel like our coaching staff and players have done that."

Pippen said next year he will continue to teach Health and P.E., coach boys' golf and remain a huge part of Lady Laker basketball.

"I have decided to coach our varsity through the remainder of the summer program in June," he said. "I really want this to be as smooth of a transition for the girls as possible. I didn't want to leave without making sure they had a solid summer program to look forward to and to improve from."

Pippen said he appreciated the support he received from all the school administration and named Scott Pierce, Kenny Pickett, Darren Gossage, Keith Ellis, Rita Branscum and Willie Feldhaus specifically, during his six years as head coach.

"I was very fortunate to have the support of my assistant coaches as well. I am a big believer in 'you are only as good as the people you surround yourself with.' I was very blessed to have had the opportunity to work with a great coaching staff these past six years. I also want to thank the previous 11 players who played for me and went on and graduated from Russell County. I enjoyed our time together and will enjoy the memories."

He said a lot of what goes into being a head coach goes unnoticed for the most part.

"Most people see the game part of it but I have spent many a night on the road scouting other teams, many a day watching film in my basement and many a weekend preparing for the week ahead," he said.

"It definitely was worth it but now I can use that time to better a different program, my family."

Pippen said, as for now, he is going to concentrate on having fun with the little time I have left this next month with the current Lady Laker team.

"I am going to enjoy each and every player, moment and possession with my team," he said.

"I wouldn't have it any other way."

RUSSELL COUNTY NEWS-REGISTER
Russell Springs

The body of 24-year-old Jamison Stephens, a 2007 Russell County High School graduate, was found in the back seat of his pickup truck at the Grider Apartments beside Lindsey Wilson College in Columbia on Tuesday morning, June 4, according to Adair County Coroner Todd Akin.

The Columbia Police Department and Kentucky State Police are investigating the incident after a groundskeeper at Lindsey Wilson made the discovery of Stephens, of Russell Springs, around 11:30 a.m.

Akin said that the body had likely been in the back seat of the black Dodge pickup for four to five days and noted that the likely reason the body was not discovered earlier was due to the heavy tint on the vehicle's windows.

He said residents of the Grider apartment building reported a "foul smell," upon which a groundskeeper at the college came over to investigate. After discovering the body, police were called to the scene to extract Stephens' body, which was sent to the state Medical Examiner's Office in Louisville for an autopsy.

Autopsy results were inconclusive on Wednesday, June 5, but the coroner's office is awaiting toxicology results before an official cause of death can be determined. Akin says that toxicology results will arrive in four to six weeks and that they have ruled out any foul play in the case.

Stephens was a commuter student from Russell County who had just finished up his sophomore year at LWC. He was taking summer classes at the college, according to LWC officials.

Akin said investigators also found a receipt from FiveStar Food Mart in the truck dated Thursday, May 30. This was the last time Stephens was seen alive, according to Akin.

Stephens was a veteran of the United States Army. He is survived by his parents, Carl and Lisa Bridgeman Stephens of Russell Springs.

The murder trial for Christopher Allman has been delayed until April 28, 2014.

Allman is charged with murder for the June 2012 rape and strangulation of 31-year-old Sarah Hart of Jamestown.

The trial date had been set for September 30 of this year but at Circuit Court on Monday, June 3, Judge Vernon Miniard, Jr. granted the delay after the motion was made by Allman's defense team on grounds that they needed more time to prepare for a potential death penalty case.

Allman continues to be held in the Russell County Detention Center.

PICKETT CO. PRESS
Byrdstown, TN

On May 24, Pickett County Sheriff Chief Deputy Steve Wilbur made a routine traffic stop which led to two arrests.

Upon further investigation, it was found that the driver had an outstanding warrant from Pickett County General Sessions Court for failure to appear. After obtaining consent to search the vehicle, methamphetamine and pseudophedrine was found.

Bradley Joe Rednour, 35, of Monticello, Ky., was arrested and charged with General Sessions Capias, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of Schedule II methamphetamine and promotion to manufacture methamphetamine.

Connie Lee Roberts, 51, of Albany, Ky., was charged with possession of Schedule II methamphetamine, promotion to manufacture methamphetamine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Assisting Wilbur was Sheriff Dana E. Dowdy, deputies Brandon Koger and Josh Smith and Sgt. Elbert Conner.

LIVINGSTON ENTERPRISE
Livingston, TN

A one-vehicle accident took the life of a Rickman resident Monday afternoon, June 3.

Lawrence Thomas Whalen, 22, of Curtis Road in Rickman was driving his 1999 Chevy Cavalier south on Hwy. 111 (toward Cookeville) when he traveled off the left side of the roadway and crossed a grass median. The car then entered into the northbound lanes of travel and ran off the roadway on the left side striking a rock wall and coming to a final rest.

Upon arrival at the scene, the Jaws of Life was used to free Whalen from the vehicle. After being extricated, emergency crews worked vigorously to save his life. He was transported to Livingston Regional Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

He was wearing his seatbelt and the airbags did deploy. Drugs and alcohol use are suspected in the accident. Toxicology reports are pending.

Trooper Andrew Goolsby investigated the accident.

Sports story for '13: Louisville is Secretariat; Haskins and Hall underrated?

When year-end time comes to chronicle the Kentucky Story in Sports, 2013, the suspense will be like Secretariat in the Belmont Stakes 40 years ago. June 9, 1973, Secretariat by 31 lengths.

Story in Sports 2013 - University of Louisville athletics by 31 lengths.

Latest chapter 2012-13, the baseball Cardinals (51-12) are off to Omaha, Nebraska this week for the college World Series.

That UofL dumped No. 2 overall seed Vanderbilt came on the heels of Rick Pitino's NCAA title team and national champion Alabama's football team being hailed for high academic achievement.

And, an announcement that the financial largess will be applied to paying for a new academic center for student-athletes.

All this since the women's basketball team played in a Final Four title game.

And Charlie Strong's team thumped Florida in the Sugar Bowl.

For merchandisers of UofL gear, UofL fans, and Terry Meiners too, Year of the Cardinal has been all that.

And, never mind those Houston Astro throw-back jerseys being worn by the baseball Cardinals in Omaha.

DON HASKINS, JOE B. HALL

Interesting off-season subject: Bleacher Report recently offered a 10-man list of Most Underrated college basketball coaches. The familiars: John Beilein at Michigan, Bo Ryan at Wisconsin and Bob Huggins at West Virginia. Two on the list coached teams to an NCAA championship and their stories have an uncanny link to Adolph Rupp.

Don Haskins at Texas Western (1966) and Joe B. Hall at Kentucky (1978).

Haskins underrated? Coached 1961-1999, 719 wins in 1,073 games, 67 per cent. Fourteen trips to the NCAA tournament, seven to the NIT. Pinnacle career moment, March 19, 1966. Texas Western won a national championship upsetting Kentucky. On the UK bench that night, assistant coach Joe B. Hall.

Hall underrated? Head coach at UK 1972-1985, 297 wins in 397 games; an NIT championship, three NCAA Elite Eights, three Final Fours including a national championship win over Duke in 1978.

He is one of three men to win an NCAA championship as a player (1949, Kentucky) and coach. Bob Knight and Dean Smith are the others.

COMMENT: Considering Texas Western's schedule and conference, the late Haskins was not underrated. Over the years, he was given more than ample credit for the win over Kentucky. In 2007 he was inducted into the Naismith Hall of Fame. His 1966 team has also been inducted.

COMMENT II: Hall has been underrated. His succeeding Rupp was publicized with a sympathetic slant, but media commentary during his tenure at UK did not adequately amplify the magnitude of expectations, criticism and second guess work he dealt with as a native son coaching at Kadillac U.

Was there a dark cloud over Hall's tenure? Yes.

A smudge on his career at Kentucky and arguably pushing his name onto an 'underrated' list, was NCAA rules violations. Alleged $50 hand-shakes with players and boosters in the locker room, improper gifts to visiting recruit (Kent Benson), and a slush fund for players. Results were NCAA probation and Hall's earlier-than-expected departure after just 13 seasons.

UK SCHOLARS TAKE A BOW

Had to be a skip in his step last week when Mitch Barnhart presented his department's GPA for 2013 spring semester to the University of Kentucky athletics oversight committee.

In particular, 12 of 13 men's basketball players posted a 3.0 or better grade point average and two had a 4.0. Outstanding. Point of pride for caring parents of players, educators and Big Blue Nation too, right?.

That six of 13 players were newcomers to UK, a 3.4 GPA is more remarkable when one calculates time invested in class, study hall, tutorial time, daily practice, team travel and whatever social life they manage.

UK basketball's GPA also reflects two college education vitals largely unmentioned – learning personal discipline and time management.

By the weekend coach John Calipari was crowing, but his tweet was re-crafted from once hailing one-and-doners drafted by NBA teams as "greatest day in UK history." This time there was at least acknowledgement of academics.

"Are we proud of our players making it to the NBA? Of course," Calipari said. "Are we happy about averaging more than 30 wins over the last four years? You bet. But we're about more than that here at Kentucky. When you run a players-first program, it's about helping kids reach their dreams both on and off the court and preparing them for the rest of their lives. You can do both at the University of Kentucky. It's a standard that's been set."

STANDARD

There is a higher one to pursue. The NCAA's Academic Progress Rate (APR) is the academic measure of all 976 Division I teams on retention and eligibility on a 1,000 point scale.

Kansas men's basketball achieved a perfect score on the NCAA's Academic Progress Rate for seventh straight time.

"We've been fortunate to have guys who buy in to what it means to be a Jayhawk in basketball and in life," Self said

Last week NCAA champions Louisville (basketball) and Alabama (football) were recognized for scores between 978 and 1,000 on annual APR rankings released in full this week.

And, one of my favorites, Butler, twice NCAA basketball runner-up, was back on the APR list having scored perfect 1,000 each of the previous three years.

WORTH REPEATING DEPT.

Basketball coach Brad Stevens turned down suitors trying to hire him away from Butler University again this spring.

"The coaching carousel is a lot of fun to talk about and form opinions on and speculate about -- until it hits your family. Then it's not fun. It's not fun to think about the impact it has on your family. No decision is made, no move is made until you examine the impact it has on your family."

And so it goes.

Josh Oesterreicher and son Thomas are pictured above with University of Kentucky Head Coach John Calipari after attending Calipari's Father/Son Camp last week.

Golf teams getting ready

The Lady Golf Dawgs and Golf Dawgs, as I mentioned last week, will be the next local team up as far as getting things rolling on the 2013 fall sports season for Clinton County High School athletic teams, with practice starting officially July 15 in preps for a season that sometimes gets underway before school actually starts.

Along those same thoughts, Lady Golf Dawgs Coach Lynn Starnes sent information this week about plans for the upcoming fundraising tournament that is to be held June 22 at 76 Falls Country Club.

Staying with the long-time "Fore The Kids" theme (yes, I coined that phrase back in the late 1990s), this year's benefit tournament will also be held in memory of Mike Anders, the CCHS Golf Dawgs coach who was tragically killed last winter in an airplane crash in Florida.

The "Mike Anders Memorial" Golf Tournament will be open to the first 88 entrants who have paid the $50 entry fee.

The first place team will share the top prize of $2,000 (based on a minimum field of 72 players), with Calcutta prizes for second and third place finishes.

A host of side contests will be featured including long drives, putting and closest to the pin, all of which will include prizes for the winners.

Those of us who knew Mike were familiar with his constant grin, jovial mood and his passion for his students and student athletes.

Naming the tournament in his honor is an extremely fitting gesture, and kudos certainly go to whomever was responsible for this idea.

Temporary rainbow trout regulations removed below dam

The emergency trout regulations on the Cumberland River below Wolf Creek Dam will be eliminated June 15.

The temporary regulations on Cumberland went into effect in September, 2009, in which anglers could keep an additional five rainbow trout daily.

The drawdown of Lake Cumberland and its subsequent creation of high water temperatures in the Cumberland River prompted the implementation of the emergency regulations nearly four years ago. Trout stress and lose body condition when water temperatures grow too high.

"With improved water quality from the raising of water levels in Lake Cumberland, we should have better conditions for trout in the Cumberland River," said Dave Dreves, fisheries research biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "We will revert back to the existing regulations before the temporary regulations went into place."

On June 15, 2013 and later, anglers may keep five rainbow trout daily, but those caught between 15 and 20 inches in length must be immediately released. Only one rainbow trout in the five trout daily creel limit may be longer than 20 inches.

Anglers may keep one brown trout daily with a 20-inch minimum size limit and they may keep one brook trout daily with a 15-inch minimum size limit.

During the drawdown, the lack of water cold enough for trout in the lower stretches of the Cumberland River in Kentucky pushed trout upstream, resulting in high trout densities in the river miles just below Wolf Creek Dam.

"With the return to normal densities, there is no need to harvest 10 trout anymore," said Jeff Ross, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "A five fish limit is optimal to allow for adequate harvest, but still allow for trophy size potential."

Roughly 10,000 rainbow trout 15 inches and longer will be stocked this fall to bring back the quality rainbow trout fishery in the river in faster fashion. Later in the fall, fisheries crews will stock an additional 10,000 to 12,000 rainbow trout ranging from seven to nine inches in length on top of the normal rainbow trout stockings in the river.

City

nated funds recently to help with the center's electric and propane bills, it came from LGEA funds, but added the city only has a little over $20,000 total in its LGEA (Local Government Economic Assistance) fund. "Legally, we can't (give money). It's city taxpayer money."

Although the county owns all of the deed for the property, since the grant funds were applied for jointly, each government entity--city and county--would be responsible for repaying up to a half-million dollars each should the Center cease to operate as a fitness facility prior to June 2016.

It was noted the Wellness Center currently has 627 total members. However, counting the fact that family memberships may cover up to two or more persons who use the facility, there were 280 paying members as of last Tuesday, June 4.

Wellness Center supporter Roger Barber asked the mayor "If it closes, what do you do then?"

The mayor replied they would have to look at that if that were ever to occur.

Grant said the Twin Lakes membership rates were lower than any other such programs around. He also said the board has learned from its past mistakes and further noted that propane was six times higher than natural gas, the latter of which the facility is currently switching to help save hopefully tens of thousands per year in fuel costs.

Grant continued that during the winter months, the facility was "between a rock and a hard place" because they couldn't shut the heat off and possibly cause damage to the building, but yet the cost to keep the heat going had added up.

The long-time proponent of the Wellness Center project also said the original architect of the facility said the original unit that was installed--that many had said was too large and expensive--had to be there.

Another aspect of the current equipment that is being replaced, according to Wellness Center officials, is that it will be up to the county and state to determine what happens with it. However, it apparently can't be used to put back into the facility, but rather go back to the grant itself.

City legal advisor Norb Sohm also told the Wellness Center supporters that the city cannot donate to any entity without having control or ownership over any of it.

In a brief switch in discussing the pool, which the board also hopes to see reopen, Councilman James "Smitty" Smith said he would like to see the board work with the schools and offer swimming classes to students.

Grant said he would like to see the high school have its own swim team and the board had practically made a promise that all fourth graders would be given the opportunity to use the pool to learn how to swim. He further stated that the board was looking into a flat "swim fee" rate to charge anyone who wanted to use the pool.

Wellness Center Director Charlotte Dick estimated the total current outstanding bills for propane and electric was about $70,000 combined, down somewhat from a few weeks ago when the board members and public met with the Clinton County Fiscal Court and prior to the court making a one-time $20,000 input to the Center from its LGEA account.

Some board members noted that in the beginning, it was first thought the facility would be using natural gas. However, at the aforementioned fiscal court meeting, it was noted Judge/Executive Lyle Huff had taken responsibility for having propane installed. The judge said at that time that the former natural gas company was in the process of bankruptcy and he didn't want to take the chance of natural gas not being there. However, a couple of years later, things changed and a new company is now operating the natural gas system.

Wellness Center board member Tim Armstrong, however, noted that during that time, other facilities, i.e. the schools, that use natural gas were never affected and never lost their natural gas as a heating source.

Grant said it was frustrating paying a bill the Wellness Center board had no control over and said the necessity for the boiler system that was installed was challenged time and time, not only by board members but some members of the fiscal court.

Councilman Smith agreed that board should have had more input.

When the grant application to construct a YMCA was first initiated, the site was to be an area in the Clinton County Industrial Park along Hwy. 90, northwest of Albany. Later, the YMCA status couldn't be reached, but funds could be applied for in the form of a fitness center, that guaranteed that at least 51 plus percent of low to moderate income residents in the county could afford to use it.

Also, the location was changed from the industrial park to its current location on property owned by the school district. Somewhere in that process, the deed went from half to the city and half to the county to 100 percent to the county, thus making it basically not legal for the city to give financial support.

Councilman Tony Delk said the Wellness Center was "a great thing...and still is a great thing," adding "you are the board and need to make the decisions."

Grant also noted that originally, five architects were looked at to design the building and said it was "suggested" by some to go with the one eventually hired. He further stated, "If we had of had the right, we would have fired (the architect)," he said.

Again Grant told the council he'd like to see the city again become part-owner. Also, it still isn't clear how the city's share of the deed got left out in the shuffle.

He added a lot of people, including all the board members, had worked very hard because they have compassion for the kids. It would be bad to see something this great and then have to lose it.

In the meantime, the board and its supporters continue to work to find solutions to not only getting the debt paid, but main streaming revenues to keep the facility operating.

They are currently trying to raise more money and memberships and anyone, it was noted, could sponsor a member or a family. The board is also selling tickets on a grill that will be given away as a fundraiser and more details on that will be announced.

Mayor Smith concluded the conversation with the board--with no action being taken--by saying he appreciated the work the board has done and although he personally would like to see the city be able to donate funds to the Center, legally they couldn't. He did say he would look into the deed on the building later on.

The council also took care of other items of business at its meeting last Tuesday and a separate article appears in this week's edition, beginning on page 1.

Budget

there was an area in south Albany that had grown up with weeds and asked if anything could be done to rectify the situation. Mayor Smith said that several letters would be sent to property owners by the city attorney requesting such areas be cleaned up.

Councilman Tony Delk also asked if some limbs and overhangs could be cut back on some streets in east Albany that is causing traffic hazards to motorists.

Mayor Smith then reminded the council of the 5K Color Run that was held in Albany this past Saturday, June 8 as part of the Lake Cumberland Foundation's benefit fundraiser, the first annual Lake Cumberland 360 Challenge Motorcycle Tour. That event, highlighted elsewhere was to celebrate the rising waters of Lake Cumberland and is likely to become an annual event.

The next regular meeting of Albany City Council is scheduled for July 2 at 5 p.m. at city hall and is open to the general public.

Health

This five-year, $3 million program seeks to test innovative ways to reduce chronic disease risks for school aged children.

"The health of our next generation is at stake," said Susan Zepeda, CEO and President of the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. "Our goal is to help communities make positive changes that will help our children start and sustain healthy habits for a lifetime. Regardless of the challenges, we want to help communities find new pathways to positive solutions."

Clinton County Schools' initial grant of $27,755 includes funding for planning, training and technical assistance so community groups can determine the most promising strategies to launch effective, sustainable models to improve children's health.

"We are thrilled that our community was chosen to participate in this important initiative," said Little. "The members of the Healthy Hometown Coalition are committed to helping children grow up in a physical, social, and cultural environment that supports good health habits. With help from the Foundation, we can develop our capacity to make a lasting, positive change in our community."

The Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition will work with the Foundation to collect and analyze data then develop ideas and implement solutions to help our children avoid chronic diseases and grow to be healthy, thriving adults.

The Healthy Hometown Coalition group is composed of a broad cross-section of Albany and Clinton County adults from a host of backgrounds - all concerned about the health and well-being of those who will be the next generation of local adults and leaders.

The Coalition group represents leaders from our education, business, health-care, service and government areas.

At last week's meeting, after hearing Little make the announcement confirming the local effort had received the grant for the initial stages of the program, Little was elected to serve as Chairperson for the group.

Albany Mayor Nicky Smith was selected to be the Vice-Chairperson for the Coalition and Lora Brewington with Cumberland Family Medical Center was selected to serve as Secretary.

Chronic diseases are diseases that last over time, decrease quality of life and increase the risk of early death. They include conditions like cancer, diabetes and heart disease. Substance abuse and some mental illnesses are also chronic. These chronic diseases occur at higher rates in Kentucky than in surrounding states. National statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reveal Kentucky's children are also above the national average in several chronic disease risk factors:

• Almost four in ten (37 percent) between the ages of 10 and 17 are obese.

• One in every 400 children and adolescents either has or will be diagnosed with diabetes.

• More than one in four (26 percent) high school students smoke cigarettes.

• When children grow into adulthood, Kentucky is above the national average in deaths from heart disease, cancer and stroke.

The Foundation relies on local leaders to identify critical health needs and helps focus investments on how best to engage the community in order to have the biggest impact.

"This is the first step in our multi-year approach which will lead to implementation of programs in each of the seven communities," concluded Zepeda. "We believe that by working together on the local level, civic leaders with vision can develop innovative strategies to improve the health of our children."

More than 50 interested organizations responded to the Foundation's Request for Proposals in October, 2012, by submitting letters of intent. Of those, 22 were invited to submit a full proposal. The Foundation's Grants Committee thoroughly evaluated projects for funding before recommending seven (7) to the Board of Directors, which approved them.

Brummett receives award from WKU Computer Science Department

Travis Brummett, a WKU student from Albany, KY, was awarded the Outstanding ACM Student Award from the Department of Computer Science at the WKU Ogden College of Science and Engineering Student Awards Ceremony on April 21, 2013, at the Carroll Knicely Conference Center in Bowling Green, KY.

The award was presented by Dr. Qi Li, professor in the Department of Computer Science at WKU, at left.

Travis would like to extend his gratitude to all the excellent instructors of the Computer Science Department, without whose help and guidance he could never hope to succeed. Through his classes and night clerk position at Northeast Hall, he has discovered that a person can do great things if they put forth the effort. After graduation, Travis plans to continue his education in graduate school. He is considering pursuing a Ph.D.

The Miranda Rights are established

June 13, 1966

On this day in 1966, the Supreme Court hands down its decision in Miranda v. Arizona, establishing the principle that all criminal suspects must be advised of their rights before interrogation. Now considered standard police procedure, "You have the right to remain silent. Anything you say can, and will, be used against you in a court of law. You have the right to an attorney. If you cannot afford one, one will be appointed to you," has been heard so many times in television and film dramas that it has become almost cliche.

The roots of the Miranda decision go back to March 2, 1963 when an 18 year old Phoenix woman told police she had been abducted, driven to the desert and raped. Detectives questioning her story gave her a polygraph test, but the results were inconclusive. However, tracking the license plate number of a car that resembled that of her attacker's brought police to Ernesto Miranda, who had a prior record as a peeping tom. Although the victim did not identify Miranda in a line up, he was brought into police custody and interrogated. What happened next is disputed, but officers left the interrogation room with a confession that Miranda later recanted, unaware that he didn't have to say anything at all.

The confession was extremely brief and differed in certain respects from the victim's account of the crime. However, Miranda's appointed defense attorney, who was paid a grand total of $100, didn't call any witnesses at the ensuing trail, and Miranda was convicted. While Miranda was in Arizona state prison, the American Civil liberties Union took up his appeal, claiming that the confession was false and coerced.

The Supreme Court overturned his conviction, but Miranda was retried and convicted in October 1966 anyway, despite the relative lack of evidence against him. Remaining in prison until 1972, Miranda was later stabbed to death in the men's room of a bar after a poker game in January 1976. As a result of the case against Miranda, each and every person must now be informed of his or her rights when arrested.

Truman's inquiry into suspicious defense plant

June 17, 1943

President Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of war, Harry Stimson, phones then-Missouri Senator Harry S. Truman on this day in 1943 and politely asks him not to make inquiries about a defense plant in Pasco, Washington.

World War II was in full swing in 1943 and Truman was chairing a Senate committee on possible war profiteering committed by American defense plants. In the process of investigating war-production expenditures, Truman stumbled upon a suspicious plant in the state of Washington and asked the plant managers to testify in front of the committee. Unbeknownst to Truman, this particular plant was secretly connected with a program to develop an atomic bomb, "the Manhattan Project." When Stimson, one of a handful of people who knew about the highly classified Manhattan Project, heard about Truman's line of questioning, he immediately acted to prevent the Missouri senator from blowing the biggest military secret in world history.

On June 17, Truman received a phone call from Stimson, who told him that the Pasco plant was "part of a very important secret development." Fortunately, Stimson did not need to explain further: Truman, a veteran and a patriot, understood immediately that he was treading on dangerous ground. Before Stimson could continue, Truman assured the secretary "you won't have to say another word to me. Whenever you say that (something is highly secret) to me that's all I want to hear. If (the plant) is for a specific purpose and you think it's all right, that's all I need to know." Stimson replied that the purpose was not only secret, but "unique."

Mr. Sloan is also now a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative for this the 82nd legislative district.

Last rites for J. R. Albertson

Mr. J. R. (Bud) Albertson, prominent citizen of the Shipley Community, died at this home Thursday afternoon, June 7.

Mr. Albertson was found by his wife shortly after a storm which blew over his hen house, and it was thought that the house fell on him as he was only a few feet away. He told his wife that the wind had blown the building down and that he was hurt badly. He lived only a short time after this. His wife had gone to the home of her son nearby when the storm came and waited until it was over before returning home. Failing to find Mr. Alberston in the house she went to the back door and saw him lying in the rain. As Mr. Albertson has been ill for sometime, it was not determined whether the building struck him or in his weakened condition he was overcome by the cold rain and wind.

Mr. Albertson was engaged in the saw mill business for many years.

Bins

been some confusion among some residents in recent years when the free dumpster days were funded. Those allowed residents in the county and city, over a certain time, to get rid of all their unwanted items at one specific time. However, the recycle bins are not for that purpose.

"I'd hate to lose it," the mayor said, adding "that's one of the good things we have to offer the public."

The bins are a joint project with the city and county, with each entities employees responsible for emptying the containers at least once a week and hauling the recyclable items to the site in Somerset.

The only cost to either government is manpower and fuel and is no cost to those residents who use the bins to get rid of recyclable materials. He further estimated that "over 100" residents legitimately use the bins for the right purpose.

Smith said recently the bins had been moved closer to the city building and there was a possibility that surveillance may be installed in the area, as well as extra police patrol.

The mayor is concerned because he noted the last time the containers were taken to Somerset Recycling, "over 90 percent" of the items found were household trash.

Smith said officials at Somerset Recycling said of all the counties they serve with the recycling bins, this was the only one that does it (uses them for trash) as much and have threatened to take the bins back if the situation persists.

"People, I think, just don't fully understand the purpose for the recycle bins," the mayor said, further stating, "the next time household trash is found, they may take them back."

The mayor said that most of the illegal dumping is done at night and on weekends and continued, "I'd hate to have to put it back behind the fence."

Residents caught dumping anything other than recyclable materials in the recycle dumpsters could be charged with littering.

"If we were to ever lose it, it would be hard to get it back," he added.

The mayor is urging residents who use the recycle bins to take only recyclable type items, such as mentioned earlier, and if anyone sees anyone dumping illegally, to report it.

Finally, anyone with questions about what can or cannot be placed legally in the recycling bins can contact City Hall at 387-6011.

Although the use of the recycling bins that have been stationed at the Albany Water Department building is popular with city and county residents, the program is in jeopardy of being taken away due to a few users who place household trash in and around the containers.

Officials at Somerset Recycling have claimed that the containers used here are the worst in terms of being abused and have threatened to stop furnishing them for Albany and Clinton County use.

TRACT I: Being Lot Number 11 of Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision, a plat of same being of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, records of the Clinton County Court Clerk's Office to which reference may be made for a more particular description of the land herein conveyed.

Subject to restrictions applying to Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, Clinton County Court Clerk's Office.

Being the same real estate conveyed to Robbie Davis and wife, Amanda Davis by Deed of Conveyance from Eric Dicken, et. ux. said Deed being dated the 27th day of October, 2000 and being of record in the Office of the Clerk of the Clinton County, Kentucky Court in Deed Book 115, Page 178.

TRACT II: Being Lot Number 21 of Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision, a plat of same being of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, records of the Clinton County Court Clerk's Office to which reference may be made for a more particular description of the land herein conveyed.

Subject to restrictions applying to Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, Clinton County Court Clerk's Office.

Being the same real estate conveyed to Robbie Davis and wife, Amanda Davis by Deed of Conveyance from J.D. Cooksey, et. ux., said Deed being dated the 16th day of July, 2007 and being of record in the Office of the Clerk of the Clinton County, Kentucky Court in Deed Book 135, Page 521.

TRACT III: Being Lot Number 22 of Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision, a plat of same being of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, records of the Clinton County Court Clerk's Office to which reference may be made for a more particular description of the land herein conveyed.

Subject to restrictions applying to Sugar Camp Estates Subdivision of record in Plat Book 4, Page 3, Clinton County Court Clerk's Office.

Being the same real estate conveyed to Robbie Davis and wife, Amanda Davis by Deed of Conveyance from J.D. Cooksey, et. ux. said Deed being dated the 29th day of January, 2008 and being of record in the Office of the Clerk of the Clinton County, Kentucky Court in Deed Book 137, Page 279.

PLEASE NOTE: Tract I will be sold first; Tract II and Tract III will be sold together and not combined with Tract I.

Tract II and Tract III contain a one (1) story house approximately five (5) years old; containing 1,360 square feet, more or less, three (3) bedrooms, one (1) bath, metal roof, two (2) covered porches and a detached storage building.

The successful bidder or bidders may elect to pay the purchase price in full at the time of the sale or be required to pay twenty (20%) percent of bid purchase price down on the date of the sale and balance of purchase price will be due and payable on or before 30 days from the date of the sale with interest thereon at the rate of 12% per annum; however, the purchaser may pay all or part of the purchase price prior to the maturity with all accrued interest due at the time of the said payment. If the sale be had on credit, the purchaser shall execute and deliver to the order of the Master Commissioner, his or her bond due and payable in 30 days, bearing interest at the legal rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from date of sale until paid, with good and sufficient surety thereon and said sale shall likewise be secured by a lien upon the said property sold, which shall have the same force and effect of a judgment and said bond with acceptable surety shall be executed immediately after the sale; upon default of the terms of said bond the Master Commissioner shall immediately resell the property on the same terms and conditions set out herein.

The 2013 and subsequent property taxes shall be paid by the Purchaser.

HON. NORBERT H. SOHM
MASTER COMMISSIONER
CLINTON CIRCUIT COURT
